Vision KW 20 / 20: "A unified congregation that is equipped to evangelize South Mississippi"

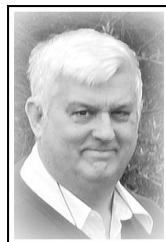

Freedom has no First cousin

America is the greatest example of what a responsibility and burden freedom can be when it is practiced. In America freedom undergirds all. We take pride in the fact that we are a nation of laws not special classes. We value life above all things yet are willing to shed our blood, give ourselves, our very lives and treasure for others who are oppressed. Yet with all we have and with all we strive to be, may we ever pray never to take the freedom that has been purchased with so much, lightly.

Of all nations on the earth we are perhaps the most generous, the most willing to suffer for the things that mean the most in life: God, Family and Country. At anytime in our history we have, and many times at the same time, had dissention, friction, agitation, intolerance and confrontation concerning many things about how the country is ruled, the way our taxes are spent, our foreign policy and any number of other competing ideas, yet one thing we have clung to as the hope of the entire world and that is, that we are free to think, act and do all these things. We live free, breathe free, walk free, think free, act free and have a keen interest in everyone else on the face of this globe being able to do as we do - "Be Free".

Since freedom is an ideal it behooves us to insure that we do not take our freedom for granted, that we support those who defend it with their very lives and that you and I live up to the high mark of being free citizens of this great country. We are free because we are willing to be free and we are not willing to be anything else. Freedom has no first cousin. One is either free or one is something else. We Americans choose freedom.
